Begin to Read with Word Families is a resource by Habakkuk Educational Materials to help students learn 660 words by introducing them to 66 word families. For example, they will be taught what sound the letters "ee" in the word "sheep" make and will be able to apply that understanding when sounding out the words beep, deep, jeep, keep, seep, sleep, steep, sweep, and weep. If you have the eBook version, you can click on the arrows at the top of each page to hear the sound made by a word family. Once the sound is identified, students insert the initial consonant sound before it in order to identify the word. Note that to successfully sound out the words, students will need to be familiar with the consonant sounds in the English alphabet, the consonant blends, and the consonant digraphs. Charts to help students learn these sounds are included at the end of the book. The "Alphabet Sounds" chart lists all the alphabet letters and includes a word that begins with each letter and an appropriate illustration. To review each sound, name the letter, identify the sound, and then read the illustrated word. (If you have the eBook version, you can click on the arrow to hear this information in the form of a tune. Paperback readers can hear the tune by visiting the Habakkuk Educational Materials website and clicking on "Phonics Songs" from the homepage.) The pauses in the recording are to give students the opportunity to repeat what is heard. Following the page with the alphabet chart, there is also a chart with consonant blends and a chart with consonant digraphs and trigraphs that can be reviewed in a similar manner. Please note also that any silent consonants at the beginning of words have been crossed out to assist students with the pronunciation and to help them recognize those consonant digraphs in which only one of the consonants is sounded (e.g., kn as in knit). To contact Habakkuk Educational Materials, please visit the business website at <https://www.habakkuk.net/>. MAKE LEARNING EASY & FUN WITH OUR PRINTABLE ALPHABET CHART! The Alphabet Chart can be an important part of teaching your child how to recognize the individual letters and sounds of the alphabet; this is part of the process of learning to read. Our Alphabet Chart consists of the 26 letters of the alphabet and a picture corresponding to the phonic sound of each letter, the chart is a great tool to teach the alphabet to your child! HOW IT WORKS A parent will point and recite the letter and picture name. For example "a - apple, b - ball, c - cat...". It is important that you go through the alphabet chart at the right speed, too slow and your child will get bored. Provide your child with the opportunity to join the game by reciting the name of pictures or letters as they begin to recognize them. Depending on the ability of your child, you can simplify or add complexity to the game by reciting the pictures only or letters only. Or you can add a variation by introducing the phonics sound for each letter. ALPHABET ACTIVITIES There are a range of activities that parents can use to teach letters to children. Here are some basics you can conduct with an alphabet chart: Play a game where you give your child a word and they find the letter that word starts with on the alphabet chart. As you recite the word, have your child come up with other words that start with that letter / sound. You can use the letter-only version of the alphabet chart to help your child practice writing letters. The ROOTS OF READING • Writing is the ability to leave information through symbols while reading is the ability to retrieve information previously written. • Writing is transcribing words we speak into understandable symbols that we see. • We are not born speaking but we are wired to acquire the speech that we hear in a relatively short time flawlessly. • We have the inherent capacity to form concepts and label concepts with words. • Reading is an outgrowth of speaking. It follows that to be a good reader one must be a fluent speaker and commands a wide range of vocabulary. • Unlike speaking, we need to be taught to read and write. We build a vocabulary of using symbols to represent the sounds that make up words. Similarly we represent auditory signs with visual signs. These signs are represented by the letters of the alphabet. • We communicate verbally through speaking and listening. • For written communication, we use writing (sending a message) and reading (retrieving message). The method of representing sounds that make up words with signs is called phonics. • Writing is simply representing the sounds (letters) we use in saying a word. Reading is retrieving the message we wrote. • Analyzing the sounds that make up a word is called decoding. Choosing letters to represent the sounds of the word we want to say is encoding. Decoding and encoding are the cornerstones of reading and writing. • At first the process of decoding is slow but with practice, automaticity sets in and decoding is faster. Decoding then is reading. • To be an effective reader one needs to develop a subset of skills as follows: phonemic awareness, phonics, fluency, vocabulary, comprehension. Brighter Child(R) Learning Letters helps young children master alphabet letters and sounds. Practice is included for
